The Proposed Rule document issued by the Employee Benefits Security Administration (EBSA) appears to conflict with the ability to manage a self directed IRA. If an individual is not allowed to have access to (and the use of) the tools available to professional traders who manage IRA's, IRA account owners will be unable to accurately measure the competency of one professional trader verses another. Better to insist we learn how to use investment tools rather than denying us access to them. Options Trading can be a means to increase income in an IRA. Please don't restrict an individuals ability to choose the investment vehicle that works best for them. Please protect my right, and the right of others, to trade options in a retirement account...
Best regards,
